EXPERIENCE

Specific experience in Capital Allowance cases

Sim Ho is regularly approached for his counsel opinion and representation in the more complex and unique capital allowances disputes with the IRAS.

Sim Ho has led the following cases:

- Capital allowance claims by an international hotel group for a unique structure that the IRAS claimed was part of the buildings whereas a case was made after detailed engineering analysis that the structure was in fact ornamental and formed part of the plant of the hotel business.
- A novel point of law arose in a case concerning balancing charge in the context of whether a real estate investment trust is controlled by its sponsors.
- A multi-hundred million claim in respect of new generation maritime structures as plant for the purposes of complex shipbuilding and repair businesses.
- The potential liability for balancing charges arising from the decommissioning and sale of gas production plants.

Other case highlight

- Commended by the Singapore Court of Appeal in a property tax case involving a shipyard and concrete batching plant. Although deciding in favour of Chief Assessor in this case, the Court of Appeal made the following comment:

"We should like to observe that although the appellant was unsuccessful in the present appeal, Mr Ong is to be commended for presenting as clear and as persuasive a case as he could on behalf of his client. Indeed, in our view, he could not have presented a stronger one. Failure to secure the decision in a case is not necessarily a reflection of the quality of the argument as well as advocacy; indeed, as we have just mentioned, this is one such instance to the contrary. We are also particularly impressed by Mr Ong's candour and his refusal to gloss over arguments as well as facts that did not appear to be in his client's favour. Although the court would, of course, disregard any such attempts, it is refreshing that Mr Ong resisted the temptation to do what happens so often, but which, we should hasten to add, is often due to inexperience and/or overzealousness rather than bad faith."

- Successfully represented a global retail firm in a tax dispute regarding the deductibility of fees incurred by in respect of banker's guarantees.
- Acting as instructing counsel in a successful appeal before the Maldivian Tax Appeal Tribunal involving tax of approximately USD 5.6 million.
- Acted for a large shipbuilding and repair business in a dispute with the Comptroller of Income Tax on capital allowance claims on expenditure amounting to approximately S$500 million.

- Successful appeal against tax assessment under section 10E of the Income Tax Act on behalf of a leading serviced apartment group.
- Successful appeal for the exemption of shipping income on behalf of a Chinese shipping company operating Singapore flag ships.

- Counsel for a property development group where the issue of the application of generally accepted accounting principles in taxation was clarified.
- Successful appeal against the Chief Valuer on behalf of a major power generation company in the property tax assessment under the "profits method". This was the first ever test case under the "profits method".
- Concluded a protracted and complex matter with the IRAS and achieved a total discharge of the corporate income tax assessment amounting to approximately S$100 million, the highest recorded tax assessment completely discharged without resort to litigation in the history of Singapore.
- Successfully represented a mall owner before the Valuation Review Board in challenging the Chief Assessor's valuation method.
- Successfully represented a high net worth individual in a stamp duty dispute matter involving the stamp duty treatment on her purchase of 83 units in a high-end luxury condominium development.
